Start by making a page
of fine marks, seeing
how small you can go.
If you have one,
perhaps try using a magnifying glass!

Find a photograph in a paper or magazine of something you are interested in copying. Make sure it is a rough print that you are happy to draw on. Draw a grid on the photograph and then draw a little rectangle on a piece of paper. Copy (roughly) the same grid on your rectangle and copy, box by box, from your photograph.

Now choose another image (perhaps one that means a bit more to you. Make an even smaller rectangle on your paper. Without using the grid, make a minotaure drawing, using a sharp pencil or fine liner pen!

The End!

I hope you enjoyed this and enjoy your precious tiny drawings!
